

SANDWICH-MAN'S BETTER FORTUNE UNBALANCED HIM

Newest Croesus of New York Goes Berserk in Hotel This Morn

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Frank Grege, the 67-year-old sandwich-sign man who gained fame and a better job by finding bonds worth $42,000 and returning them to the owner, went on a rampage early today in a hotel where he lives. "I am God," he shouted. "I can kill anyone who looks at me."

While police and a doctor were attempting to restrain the sign carrier, Michael J. Grycwacz, 40, of New York walked into the room and complained of feeling ill. "I am God," Grege shouted again, glaring at the newcomer. "I can kill anybody."

Grege was already dead. Grege already had sent one man to a hospital with a push down a flight of stairs.

Taken to Hospital

The man who had given Bowery his greatest inspiration of the winter was taken to a police station and there, with the body of Grycwacz lying only a few feet away, was held down by policemen until he could be removed to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue hospital.

"I am God," he shouted as a crowd gathered. "Nothing is too good for me. That hat I wear is worth $15. I have on $10 shoes. Nothing is too good for me. I am God. I can kill anybody who looks at me."

"People stare at me," he explained. "Ever since I found the money in Wall Street they stare at me all the time."

"That's why I killed him."

"Killed Three, Bad Day"

"I killed three today, but I had a bad day. I usually kill from ten to fifteen."

Grege was earning a dollar a day advertising a passport photo studio from his sandwich boards and picked a wallet from the muddy gutter. In it were the bonds. He immediately notified police. That was on February 5.

Police expressed fear he would go unrequited. Grege was unperturbed, but not so the public.

Belden & Company, the brokerage firm which had lost the bonds outfitting him in new clothes, gave him $100 and a better job. The surety company gave him a reward and a weekly bonus. Every mail increased his wealth with checks from admirers all over the nation.

Croesus of Broadway

A discouraged, shabby derelict became the Croesus of the Bowery. He got a dollar a minute—in contrast to a dollar a day—for telling of his good fortune over the radio.

But the transition was too much for Grege.

He was ascending the stairs in the hotel while James Kelly, also 67, was descending. Grege sent Kelly plunging down the stairs, badly lacerating his scalp.

Grege next walked into the reading room and shouted his boast before 25 other guests. The first policeman to arrive found him rolling on the floor, still shouting, and called aid. Four officers and a doctor were trying to restrain him when Grege walked in, heard the threat hurled at him, opened wide his eyes, and crumpled to the floor.

The story of what had happened to Grege spread like wildfire throughout the Bowery flophouses. Men who had accepted his apparent good fortune as evidence that they might be down but yet not out, pondered over it.

Psychiatrists at Bellevue hospital studied the 67-year-old man and reached this conclusion: Grege's good fortune was responsible for his breakdown. He ate much rich food to which he was unaccustomed. The food generated more blood than his heart could care for properly. Result: arteriosclerosis, impairment of the functioning of his brain and insanity.

Illinois Relief Costs Next Month Will Be Highest in History With Estimated Expense of $14,316,279

Chicago, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Relief requirement estimates for Illinois in March are the highest in the state's history, the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission announced today.

Expenditures totaling $14,316,279 are anticipated for a total of 325,215 families. Previous records are the estimated $12,683,397 needed for this month and the 322,000 families cared for in March, 1933.

The commission revealed its plans to increase the number of family heads on work relief from 112,000 this month to 130,524 in March. The increase in case load for March is entirely in Cook county, the commission said.

The estimated expenditure for March will be approximately $1,435,000 higher than for February, due primarily to work relief. The five pay days for work relief in March against four in February.

Of the total estimated March expenditures, $1,111,767 will be for administration purposes and $661,735 for "special activities," which include transient relief, an emergency educational program and statistical research. Work relief costs will require $5,826,965. Direct relief will reach $7,021,250.

The commission yesterday tabled a proposed change in policy for paying rent for relief families, discussed complaints about lack of "home rule" in downstate counties, and heard reports of discourtesy of relief employees.

WRONG MIXTURE

North Manchester, Ind., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Balked in a college prank by a tear gas bomb, three Manchester College students decided to "mix their own" and retaliate. Today they were suffering from injuries received when their mixture exploded in the college chemistry laboratory.

Physicians said Jack VanGilder of Mentone, Ind., may lose his sight. Robert McCune of Mt. Morris, Ill., and Eldon Heckman of Polo, Ill., were less seriously hurt.

Monday night a group of students trying to "rush" the town moving picture theater were turned back at the door when Town Marshall Hathaway tossed a tear gas bomb. College authorities said they learned VanGilder, McCune and Heckman decided to "get even" but mixed the wrong chemicals when they tried to prepare tear gas in the laboratory.

WORK RELIEF'S FUTURE BACK IN NEBULOUS STATE

Roosevelt May Plead With Country to Get His Wage Desires

Washington, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The huge Roosevelt program of work relief, set back to where it was nearly a month ago, faced a nebulous future today. Talk on Capitol Hill ranged all the way from hints the president would carry the fight to the country to a prediction that the bill is "dead" and the "do" must go on.

It was Senator Burnes (D-SC), an administration supporter, who had said the bill had met its death, but some proponents of the McCarran prevailing wage amendment answered today that they believed this was merely a "threat."

Burnes amplified today the statement he made yesterday after the $4,880,000,000 bill to which the McCarran amendment had been of administration forces, had been tackled over the strenuous opposition sent back from the senate floor to the senate appropriations committee.

Talking for Himself

Insisting he was expressing his own belief and not talking for the president, Burnes said "there is no prospect" of reviving the work program and "the committee problem" (Continued on Page 2)

JOE CANNON'S DAUGHTER DIED DURING NIGHT

Was Hostess for Her Father During His Official Life

Danville, Ill., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Miss Helen Cannon, 70, daughter of and hostess for the late Speaker "Uncle Joe" Cannon, died at the family home early today of heart trouble.

She was prominent in Washington social circles during her father's career in congress, which included eight years as speaker when that office held virtually dictatorial powers over the national house of representatives.

After Joseph Burney Cannon died about ten years ago, Miss Cannon continued to entertain prominent persons who visited Danville. She also made frequent trips to Washington and Europe.

She was at Washington during the forty years that "Uncle Joe" Cannon served as Republican congressman from the Danville district.

Friends here said the mother, Mary Read Cannon, who died about forty years ago, was never active and that the social duties of entertaining for the congressman were taken over by Miss Cannon.

The surviving relatives are two nieces, Mrs. Helen Leasure Richardson, who also lived at the family home here, and Mrs. William Hotelling of San Francisco, who is now on a trip to New York through the Panama Canal.

Funeral arrangements are being held in abeyance until word is received from Mrs. Hotelling.

Miss Cannon was born at Tuscola, came to Danville at the age of eleven and was a graduate of Wellesley College. She was known here for her philanthropy.

TVA FORBIDDEN TO SELL SURPLUS POWER BY JUDGE

Alabama Federal Judge Holds Roosevelt Pet Plan is Invalid

Washington, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The New Deal moved today to defend its vast electric power development in the Tennessee Valley against a formidable legal threat.

Friends of the administration anticipated a quick appeal from a ruling yesterday by Federal Judge W. T. Grubb of Alabama that the Tennessee Valley Authority has no legal authority to dispose of surplus power generated at hydro-electric plants on the Tennessee river.

The decision struck squarely at an important link in the enterprise which President Roosevelt has fostered to provide a "yardstick" for private power rates.

Judge Grubb's challenge to the TVA's plans came in the midst of congressional agitation for additional federal financing authorities to develop and market electricity in the Missouri, Arkansas, Columbia and other river valleys.

Permanent Injunction

Pondering the implications of the ruling, the Capital noted especially that the court made permanent an injunction restraining 14 north Alabama cities and towns from negotiating with the Public Works Administration for loans to build electric distribution systems. There was speculation as to what effect, if any, this might have nationally on PWA's policy of giving financial encouragement to municipal power developments.

Judge Grubb's ruling was handed down in a suit brought by preferred shareholders of the Alabama Power Company. They contended TVA's plans for an extensive electrification program in northwest Alabama were unconstitutional. Judge Grubb previously had provided material for a supreme court test on another New Deal agency—the NRA. He ruled not long ago that the recovery act and a lumber code established under it were invalid. The government appealed that case directly to the supreme court, where it is pending.

In Retail Business

In discussion of the setback to TVA Capital circles referred frequently to a statement by Judge Grubb that "I have never been able to bring myself to see that the United States has any right to go into a retail business."

The decision was regarded with (Continued on Page Two)

LEE MOTORISTS' FEES LAST YEAR TOTAL $98,314

Allotments of Motor Fuel Tax Based on Licenses Paid

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes today announced the distribution by counties of the $17,333,333 received during 1934 for motor vehicle license fees. It is upon this basis that the counties are allotted their share of the gasoline tax revenues.

Of the total collections, $8,097,143 are from Cook county.

During 1935, each county will get from the gas tax collections an amount in proportion to the license fees its residents paid last year.

Gas tax allotments to municipalities are made on the basis of population, rather than license fee payments.

The 1934 license fees collected from the downstate counties included:

Lee $98,314; Bureau 107,056; Joliet $35,814; Kane 355,697; LaSalle 60,026; Rock Island 246,808; Stephenson 117,678; Whiteside 135,873 and Winnebago 340,993.

PREPARATION OF SEED BED TO BE SCHOOL'S THEME

Will be Discussed at Weekly Farmers' Session Monday Eve

Seed bed preparation and cultivation will occupy the attention of farmers Monday at the agricultural short course of ten weeks being given each Monday night at Dixon high school.

The class, ranging from twenty to forty farmers, work by week, is conducted by Professor John N. Weiss, high school agricultural instructor, and takes the form of an open discussion on a series of planned subjects outlined in the opening meeting five weeks ago. Last week the group dealt with a plan for seedling cover and alfalfa on adjusted acres.

Other topics recently discussed include varieties of soy beans to be used in place of small grains, seed corn selection, testing, and treatment, a discussion of the 1935 contracts and the outlook for corn production in 1935.

Subjects yet to be studied in the open forum are fertilization and soil types for production, the chinch bug situation, marketing of corn and harvesting, and other miscellaneous points not mentioned in the regular outline.

Southerner Met an Auto Accident Here Late Last Evening

Boyd Smith, a traveling salesman of Birmingham, Ala., wrecked his own car and badly damaged another belonging to Allen Hoffman of this city at about 11 o'clock last evening in a collision on South Galena avenue near Tenth street when his car sideswiped the Dixon man's truck as both were sad to be traveling north on Galena avenue.

Smith's car skidded and turned over on the paving, the driver escaping without injury. Chief Van Bibber was called to the scene of the crash and both cars were towed to a garage. Smith was held at the city jail over night and this morning was taken before Justice Grover Gehring where a charge of reckless driving was preferred. He was assessed a fine of $10 and costs and agreed to pay the amount of damage to the Dixon truck owner.

Dionnes Tired of Being Proxy Parents to Quints; Seek Some Say About 'em

Canadian Control of Babes Irks Papa and Mamma Dionne

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Olivia Dionne has had enough of being a proxy papa to his quintuplet daughters, and now he and Mamma Dionne are going to see about taking the government out of their home life.

"We don't like the way the government is splitting up our family," he said here today between three-day stage appearances.

To do something about it, Dionne announced he had retained Paul Martin, Windsor attorney, to petition the Ontario government to remove the state guardians and release a portion of the $100,000 riches befallen the "quints" for the benefit of the other five Dionne children.

An adjustment of the contract which the Dionnes signed with the Canadian government will probably be sought about March 1, after the parents return to Callander, Ont., it was said by one of the Dionne "personal representatives."

Praise Dr. Dafee

Neither Mamma nor Papa Dionne have any bone to pick with Dr. Allan Dafee, doctor to the "quints," said he was "fine"—but they want to have control of the brood again.

"We have ten children," Mrs. Dionne said recently, "and we are not in favor of having five of them millionaires while their little brothers and sisters are brought up in comparative poverty. They're all in the same family and they should be brought up like that."

And this business of a special hospital and special rules gets the Dionne indignation worked up.

"Why," Papa Dionne declared heatedly, "the five other children have only seen their little sisters twice—both times behind glass, and other people can get into the hospital anytime."

To a French-Canadian interrogator, according to the Canadian Press, Mrs. Dionne related:

Ordered From Hospital?

"One one occasion I wanted the little shirts the quintuplets had worn. They had outgrown them and I felt I would like to have them. One of the nurses ordered me out of the hospital, threatening to strike me with a flashlight she had."

Other topics recently discussed include varieties of soy beans to be used in place of small grains, seed corn selection, testing, and treatment, a discussion of the 1935 contracts and the outlook for corn production in 1935.

AMERICAN CREW OF TANKER ARE NOT SUSPECTED

Japs Give Grounded Vessel Clean Bill After Inquiry

Tokyo, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The American captain and crew of the tanker Elizabeth Kellogg, grounded in the very shadows of important Tokyo Bay fortifications, were cleared of espionage suspicion today, the newspaper Asahi said in a dispatch from Yokosuka.

The vessel, under charter to the Japanese Mitsui Company and in command of Captain Norman T. Henderson, was given a clean bill of health and permission to proceed to Osaka as soon as she is refloated.

Investigators from the fortresses commanding the bay made a thorough inquiry, based on suspicions the grounding might have been deliberate to permit members of the crew to photograph the defenses. An excellent view of the harbor works was commanded from the tanker, which stranded yesterday.

Naval officers denied they intend to question the crew, although officers previously informed Japanese newspapers of their intention to do so.

A Japanese destroyer was dispatched to assist in refloating the vessel. It was necessary to jettison 1,000 tons of oil to proceed with the task.

The newspaper Kokumin said suspicion first was aroused when a naval officer who boarded the Elizabeth Kellogg failed to understand the explanation of the grounding as given by the captain and members of the crew.

FIRE NEAR LEE CENTER

August Behn, who resides on a farm southwest of Lee Center, was transacting business at the court house about 11:30 this morning when he was informed that his home was burning. He left at once for the scene of the fire. Reports this afternoon indicated that only a portion of the roof was burned, the fire presumably having started from sparks from a chimney. The community truck from the Amboy fire department was summoned and assisted in extinguishing the blaze and confining the damage to the roof.

ably will do nothing about it." "The president stated that if the McCarran amendment were adopted he would not sign the bill," Byrnes said. "The senate adopted it. Therefore, so far as the works part is concerned the bill is gone." He expressed the thought the committee would report out an appropriation of $800,000,000 or $1,800,000,000 to carry out the present relief program for six months or a year. This program, strictly speaking, is not a dole pure and simple but a combination of dole and work relief.

Want Prevailing Wage

Such a move by the committee would mean at least a major delay in the president's plan to put 3,500,000 "employable" to work on public works at "security wages" of about $50 a month. The forces behind the McCarran amendment, which include the American Federation of Labor, want the payment of wages prevailing in private industry.

The works bill, facing half a dozen other drives to alter it, was sent back to committee on motion of senator Robert Wagner. Democratic leader and with the advice of Senator Glass (D-Va.) who had fought in vain against the McCarran amendment, Glass thought the committee should report out a bill "that will not be quite so controversial."

May Take Long Time

Some other sources on Capitol Hill were saying today that no hasty effort would be made to bring the works part of the bill out of committee for some time. It was said that certain administration strategists believed that states and municipalities which had been counting on public works projects would bring pressure to bear on congress to pass the bill in a form that would not face a presidential veto threat.

A tentative plan to have the $800,000,000 separated from the $4,000,000,000 and reported out quickly as the relief administration will not be without funds is expected to be considered by the appropriations committee next week.

a natatorium or swimming pool for Dixon and the recent legislation at Springfield which had made possible the issuance of bonds by cities and park boards for the construction of pools to be paid for out of the earnings.

Can Build Pool

City Attorney Cannon explained that while a bond firm was active in locating a pool in Dixon, that under the law recently passed, the city was not obligated to any bond firm that the city could build its own pool where it chose to be paid for through a bond issue out of the earnings. He then added that while all of this was legal the first step was to find a sale for the bonds.

Commissioner Loftus stated that in the event that the pool could be built by a bond issue and without taxing the public that he was strongly in favor of a natatorium for the city.

Commissioner Cal G. Tyler informed the council that he had made some investigations of pools in several Illinois cities and had formed the opinion that the amount stipulated by the Chicago bond firm for the construction of a natatorium in Dixon was considerably higher than was necessary.

WHAT'S THE HURRY.

By Joseph Fort Newton

A old friend in London sent me a copy of "The Speed Book," and it makes me dizzy to read it. "Faster! Faster!" cried the Red Queen in Alice in Wonderland, or you cannot get anywhere at all.

"Here, you see it takes all the running you can do, to keep in the same place," she very kindly explains. "If you want to get somewhere else, you must run at least twice as fast as that!"

Anyway, we are going at an awful gait in these days, breaking a record of one sort every day. Sir Malcolm Campbell, having no record to break, broke his own record at Daytona—a good thing to do.

One reads of a time, not far away, when men will leave London and arrive in New York half-an-hour earlier, by the sun, than they would by the ship. This time-space business makes my poor head whirl!

Oddly enough, the fastest feature in the craze for speed is the speed which the latest record is forgotten. The air-record, set down in the book, was broken sky-high while the book was in press!

The pictures in the book are wonderful—one from an airplane poised above a mass of clouds, which looks like an ocean of soap-suds, as if the world had been whipped into a frothy foam.

Here is the stream-line life, if one likes it—man mastering space and distance; our mania for arriving, as if life were just getting there, whether there is any reason for being there or not.

It is fine, it is thrilling. But why so fast? What is the hurry? If we go so fast, we cannot see anything, we miss the beauty of the journey. It is all lost in most, cloud and a fog of fastness.

Saving time? But is the time worth saving? Why are we going so fast with the time saved? Make more things that people cannot buy? Or is it to add to our leisure which we do not know how to use?

But what is the use of asking such questions? We are going too fast to think, and no one can hear the answer for the roar of the engine. It is fun just to be taken for a ride, is it not?

O. E. S. PreLenten Party Next Friday

Dorothy Chapter No. 371, O. E. S., have planned a very delightful dancing party which will be held at the Masonic Temple on Friday evening, March 1st. The beautiful ball room will be redecorated for this event and those in charge of the party are anticipating a very large attendance for they have contracted with Quin Bowen and his orchestra for a return engagement. This orchestra furnished the music and entertainment for one of the holiday parties and everyone who attended praised them so highly that plans for a similar party were made at home. The orchestra, this time, will include several entertainers and the party coming just previous to Lent will give all who appreciate a fine dancing party an opportunity to enjoy themselves.

Mrs. W. A. McNichols, Mr. and Mrs.

Amelia Earhart Putnam is exceedingly womanly, charming and friendly. One lady told us this morning that, candidly, she did not expect to be highly entertained, but she was an excellent speaker, and so charming that she held the rapt attention of all to her last word.

She was girlish and lovely in a floor-length brown gown, with a short taffeta jacket and big bow. Her light brown hair was in its usual graceful wind-blown fashion. The story of her solo flight from Hawaii to California was treated by her in a most casual way, although it is a decided advance ment for aviation.

Sir Knights, Their Ladies Danced on Mount Vernon Lawn

The annual Knights Templar ball and card party which was held at the Dixon Masonic Temple last evening was one of the most beautiful parties Dixon has had in many years and exceeded all expectations. The ball was beautifully decorated; the design for the stage, which was prepared and supervised by Robert Reed, was built up to represent the porch of George Washington's home, "Mount Vernon," and the impression gained was that the party was on the lawn of Mount Vernon with the orchestra seated on the porch.

At 8:00 P. M. a picked team of the Knights Templar went through an intricate drill under the direction of Lloyd Lewis, during which they formed a number of difficult figures, including the hollow square and the passion cross, and they were repeatedly encored for their exceptionally fine work. The grand march was formed with the commander, Sir Knight C. J. McLean and his wife leading, followed by the officers of Dixon Commandery in the order of their rank, and they in turn by the past commanders, visiting commanders and the Sir Knights from the northern part of Illinois, together with their ladies in their beautiful party gowns. During the grand march programs were distributed to the gentlemen, and the guests proceeded through the several figures of the grand march, they marched toward the head of the hall in columns of eight, the orchestra playing "Onward, Christian Soldiers." As they were halted they faced a beautiful picture of George Washington with spot lights playing on it, which effectively reminded everyone that this occasion was the anniversary of the birthday of George Washington.

The guests who intended to take part in the card party were informed that the tables were ready and the prizes on exhibition in the corridor, and the dancers began to enjoy the evening to the strains of the famous waltz, King, Johann Strauss' famous waltz "The Merry Widow," and the dancing continued in full swing until long after midnight. There were guests present from all of the cities in northern Illinois, and they thoroughly enjoyed the evening and expressed their delight with the beautiful party arranged by the Dixon Commandery. This annual affair is probably the most colorful dancing party in this part of the state, for the Sir Knights in full uniform make it a semi-military party, and the ladies always devote much time and effort in the selection of their beautiful vari-colored party gowns, and each year they seem to appear more beautiful. This, together with the decorations, which combine those of the Knights Templar organization with the national flag and the pictures of George Washington, create an atmosphere that is most unusual in dancing parties.

The prizes for the card party were of exceptional value and attractiveness this year, and so the competition was keen. The result was that the ladies' first prize, a beautiful Mexican shawl which the commander had sent to California, for especially for this occasion was won by Mrs. Warren Leake. The ladies' second prize, which was a very beautiful magazine rack, was won by Mrs. Frank Sproul. The ladies' third prize, one of the very attractive type "pin on" wall lamps was won by Mrs. Nell Gearhart.

The gentlemen's first prize, which was a beautiful chrome plated smoker's stand, was won by Lee Read. This, like the ladies' first prize, is something that the winner will proudly exhibit for many a day. The gentlemen's second prize, a large foot stool, was won by Joe Graff and the gentlemen's third prize, a card table, was won by F. A. Hanson.

The party ended all too quickly for the many guests who had been repeatedly encoring the music, furnished by an excellent Rockford orchestra, and the guests left for the various eating places almost in a body, which overtaxed their serving capacity. Before leaving, the guests repeatedly expressed their delight with the evening's entertainment provided by the Sir Knights of Dixon, under the direction of their Commander, and his wife.

New Device Rings the Belle

INTRICATE HAIRDRESS EASY TO FIX AT HOME

NEA Service Staff Writer

Those nice little ringlets, fashionable though they are and certainly flattering to almost any head, are pretty difficult to keep in place. You start out with rows of them framing your face and the back of your head, but by the time you get to a place, the high collar of your evening wrap or the rubber band that holds your shallow hat on your head has completely ruined the curls.

Right then, you know perfectly well that you'll have to go back to the hairdresser again in the morning or else go around looking like a tramp until your next weekly visit. It's all been rather discouraging and a good many girls who really like ringlets have given them up on account of the trouble they cause.

Realizing this, one smart manufacturer has created a little metal gadget that anyone can use to make ringlets right at home. Easy to hold in the hand and simple to manage once you get used to the idea, this contraption is a far cry from the old type metal curlers that you have to leave on all night.

Take enough hair to make one ringlet, moisten it with warm water, roll it up on the curler, carefully remove the curler and then pin the ringlet in place with a bobby pin. Repeat until you have made all the little curls you need. Don't remove the bobby pins until the ringlets are dry.

This method doesn't injure the hair in any way and can be used as often as you like.

NEXT: Bleaches and dyes.

This illustrates the correct way to use the new metal curler that enables everyone to make ringlets at home.

Practical Club Hears Delightful Paper on Color Harmony

The Practical Club members were entertained on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Homer Senneff 705 E. Chamberlain street, with sixteen members and three guests present.

The very interesting paper, on the subject, "Color Harmony in the Home," was given by Mrs. C. A. Mellott.

This subject has many possibilities and some very helpful and interesting facts were brought out. When buying, be sure that you get something more than just some color, for the color we really need. Colorlessness seems to be the cardinal sin of the American housewife. We seem to stick to neutral colors to play safe; surely we do not go wrong, but make our homes charming color, but omit putting originality and charm of color in our own backgrounds, our homes.

Crispness and character in color are no more expensive than dullness and monotony.

Color is probably the most beautiful thing in the reach of everyone, but calls for originality. Too long "talent" for combining colors. An expression for color beauty is nothing more than young in the soul, irrepresible cheer in the heart. Successful use of color calls for good taste, but the simple use of it produces sensations of joyousness and tranquility. A thorough study of our surroundings is advisable before choosing colors and keeping in glowing colors for bleak rooms and cool, restful colors for warm rooms.

Following this most interesting discussion, Miss Edwina McCleary of California, played two very lovely instrumental selections on the piano, which were very much enjoyed.

The hostess then served delicious refreshments assisted by Miss McCleary and Miss Gracia Senneff, at the table of which was attractive in spring flowers.

An enjoyable social hour followed ending a most pleasant afternoon.

Program for Philharmonic Concert Sunday at M. E. Church

The Dixon Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of S. R. Samuelson, is presenting a concert Sunday afternoon in the Methodist church, the concert being sponsored by the Ladies Aid Society of the church. A silver offering will take part in the concert. No doubt the church will be crowded at 3 o'clock the citizens of Dixon will have the pleasure of supporting and enjoying their own musical organization in its earnest effort to interpret some of the world's greatest music. One may tune in on some of the great orchestra's of the eastern cities and hear by radio a finished concert, but that contributes little to the cause of good music in our own community. When our neighbors work for weeks on music that is well established, and bring to us a good concert, there are a number of values.

The program will be presented as follows:

ELECTION TUESDAY

On next Tuesday the voters of Dixon have a very important duty to perform. They will nominate candidates for mayor and commissioners, and among the candidates they select will be the people who will run this city for the next four years.

The Telegraph believes that Dixon is especially fortunate in this coming election because we have ample material among the candidates to fill out a very fine set of city officials. There are five candidates for mayor and twelve for commissioner. Tuesday's election, which is a primary, will select two candidates for mayor and eight candidates for commissioner, and at the final election, which will be held early in April, the voters will make their decision on Dixon's new officials.

Any voter who thinks Tuesday's election unimportant is grievously mistaken. It certainly is important that our mayor and commissioners are honest and intelligent, and we should make our choice with that in mind. An efficient city administration will be impossible without the right kind of officials and we should vote for the best on the list.

There is one innovation in Tuesday's election which is interesting and newsworthy. This is the first time in Dixon that a woman has offered her name as a candidate for city office, and fortunately she is a woman who is well equipped for this public service. Mrs. Florence Plummer White represents the highest type of public spirited citizen. She is not a crank or a reformer but can be depended upon to stand up for the right sort of an administration.

There are other candidates whose qualities recommend them highly for the offices they seek. Vote for a set of city officials of which you feel the city may be proud, and who will give us an honest efficient administration.

THOUGHT THROTTLED

Prof. Hermann Oncken, historian of Berlin University, has been ordered by the Nazi government to discontinue a course of lectures he has been giving to university students this winter.

The reason is that he had the temerity to put on history an interpretation different from the official Nazi version. That is, he denied that the course of history supports the theories which Nazi leaders profess to find in it.

This little incident gives us a good glimpse at the suppression of thought which is inevitable under an authoritarian regime. The function of a university is to hunt for and publish the truth—to hunt for it without preconceptions and to present it without fear or favor.

A dictatorial government cannot permit that. It can permit the publication of only a certain kind of truth—its own kind.

Among the first casualties of a dictatorship is the free inquiry which is a university's excuse for existence.

HARDLY IN GOOD TASTE

Dramatic critics have written a good deal in recent years about the decline of the stage; but however great this decline may have been, there seems to have been no decline whatever in the appetite of a certain section of the theatergoing public for dramatic fare of an exceedingly odd kind.

This reflection is brought forth by announcement that at least a few of the members of the jury that convicted Bruno Hauptmann are going to go on the stage.

To go on the stage is an inalienable right of any free-born American citizen, to be sure, provided he can get away with it; and a public which has recently financed public appearances of Pa Dillinger has small right to be finicky.

Nevertheless, a number of people would be left with a better taste in their mouths if these jurors should reconsider.

HALT CHILD LABOR

Msgr. John A. Ryan, director of social welfare for the National Catholic Welfare Conference, is the latest public man to add his voice to the demand for ratification of the child labor amendment.

Dr. Ryan points out that, far from being the product of radicals, the amendment was drafted by such men as Senators Walsh of Montana and Pepper of Pennsylvania and was sponsored by Senator Shortridge of California.

He emphasizes the folly of permitting children to work while their elders are on relief, and reminds us that NRA's prohibition of child labor—in some 500 codes—is not, as far as we know, a permanent thing.

"It would be deplorable," he says, "if this amendment should be lost now that it is within sight of victory."

Twenty-four states have ratified it. Twelve more are needed. The job can be done this year, if friends of the amendment do not relax their efforts.

I watched him (Hitler) with the utmost vigilance throughout our lengthy conversation, and I am convinced he genuinely desires peace.—Lord Allen of Hurtwood.

There is a temporary excuse for federal assistance to the indigent.—James A. Emery, general counsel, National Manufacturers' Association.

GOLD CLAUSES
WERE TALKED
70 YEARS AGOIllinois Supreme Court
Decided Similarly

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Gold cases, such as that decided Monday by the United States Supreme Court, are not new in Illinois.

Seventy years ago the Illinois Supreme Court handed down an opinion which, attorneys said today, decided the issue in the same manner as that determined upon by the Supreme Court of the United States this week insofar as private obligations were concerned.

The case came to the Illinois Supreme Court in 1867 from Adams county and involved a $150 note on which the maker, Abijah Whetstone, had been ordered to pay $235.50.

The note contained a promise to pay in gold and the difference between the face value and the amount the Adams county Circuit Court had ordered Whetstone to pay was occasioned by depreciated currency.

Court's Decision

In ruling on the case, the Illinois court, in an opinion written by Associate Justice Sidney Bress, said: "A promise by note to pay $150 in gold is nothing more than a promise to pay $150, and a judgment on such note can only be for $150, with interest as stipulated. Under the acts of Congress on Feb. 25 and July 11, 1862, called the legal tender laws, how could such a note be paid?"

"These acts provide, that the notes issued under their authority, shall be lawful money, and a legal tender in the payment of all debts, public and private, within the United States." This note is private debt, and consequently could be discharged by the payment of treasury notes of the kind specified in the acts no question being made as to the constitutional power of Congress to make such enactments, in x x x Treasury notes are equal, by congressional legislation, to gold, in the discharge of such debts, and how can the creditor claim more?

x x x

An Earlier Opinion
In an earlier opinion, written by Chief Justice P. H. Walker in 1864, the Illinois Supreme Court had taken the same view.

It was then said, in an almost identical case, that payment must be made for "value received, the value which the maker of the note received from the payee." That opinion said the contract was for a specific sum of money, in dollars, without specifying the kind of dollars, regardless of the word "gold" in the note.

Then, in 1867, the same court said: "we can recognize no difference between gold and legal tender notes."

"The Illinois court, however, was forced to reverse itself in 1870 as the result of a decision made by the U. S. Supreme Court in 1868 in which it was held "a contract to pay a certain sum of gold or silver coin is, in substance and legal effect, a contract to deliver a certain weight of gold and silver of a certain fineness, to be ascertained by count."

DAILY HEALTH

YELLOW FEVER

The achievement of General Gorgas and his workers in conquering yellow fever in the Panama region undoubtedly represents one of the most brilliant chapters in medical history.

It is a chapter of black and white contrasts. The yellow fever plague was so very black in its devastations, and the relief achieved at the beginning of the present century by the United States army commission headed by Gorgas was so bright, that many have the erroneous idea that yellow fever has been entirely vanquished.

True, the terrible yellow fever epidemics, which periodically used to decimate the population of New Orleans, Panama, Havana, and other cities around the Gulf and the Caribbean are no more. However in the interior of South America, and in the half-civilized regions of West Africa, yellow fever still smolders and these regions represent a continuous threat to the rest of the world.

The methods applied to the eradication of the disease in Panama and in the United States apparently are not available for stamping out yellow fever in the backwoods regions. Also, further study of this disease brings to light the fact that yellow fever may be spread by other carriers than the stegomyia mosquito, the destruction of which in the Panama region caused the disappearance of the disease.

In the light of this, it is encouraging to learn that effective methods have been developed for the artificial development of immunity or resistance to yellow fever.

By the injection into susceptible individuals of living yellow fever virus (which had been modified by being passed through mice), in combination with immune serum taken from individuals who had had yellow fever and recovered from it, a substantial number of persons have been rendered resistant.

In this immunizing procedure we may have the promise of being at last able to stamp out completely yellow fever.

EARLY DIXONITIES

GOV. ALEXANDER CHARTERS

Governor Alexander Charters was born in Belfast, Ireland, July 7, 1800. His parents were Alexander Charters and Eleanor Mackey Charters. He received his education in his native place and in 1815 sailed for New York, in order to join his two brothers who were established in business in that city as linen importers.

He entered their store, and in time was admitted to partnership with them in the firm J. A. Charters & Co. He continued thus occupied until 1838, when he retired from active business life and moved to Dixon. In this locality he purchased a section of land which is one of the most fertile and beautifully located properties in Illinois.

There he resided surrounded by natural scenery of unrivaled loveliness, retired with a spot on the Rock river whose innumerable and unsurpassed beauties have called forth the admiration of that gifted woman, Margaret Fuller Ossoli. Though not actually engaged in

CORAL CRABS
MYSTERIOUS AS
GALAPAGOSFound 10,000 Miles From
Their Original
Habitat

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The mystery of the coral-gall crab exceeds the mystery of the vanished empress of the old convicts' Isle of Charles.

So say the Smithsonian Institution scientists, back today after two and a half months in the seas of romance, mystery and adventure, the western equatorial Pacific.

The empress is gone. The strange woman who for two years ruled the Galapagos Garden of Eden, attired in pink silk panties, the scientists said, probably perished last March with her companion Robert Phillips, at the hands of an outraged castaway companion, Alfred Rudolph Lorenz, who later died of thirst on a lonely, treeless rock a hundred miles away.

This Baronesse, Eloise Bonquet de Wagner, the scientists believe, is today interred in one of the lonely virtually inaccessible caves of Charles Island.

But the greater mystery is the coral-gall crab. This is a tiny crustacean, about a quarter of an inch long. It is an irritating little animal. It irritates the coral to which it clings to such an extent that the coral secretes a growth which eventually surrounds and imprisons the crab, and so it perishes.

That makes the branch coral most beautiful, giving it nodules.

The coral-gall crab is well known in the Indo-Pacific. The mystery, says Dr. Waldo L. Schmitt, research chief of the exploration cruiser Yelero III's party, is how it ever got in the western Pacific. That's ten thousand miles from its previously known habitat. Yet Dr. Schmitt found colonies of them.

It really was a sight to see the Tinies, thrilled as they could be, all packed into the great big boat. "What fun," we Doty cried. "As soon as we are safe and sound inside of this, we'll whirl around, and then take to the air upon a brand new sort of ride."

"I'm hurryin' as best I can," replied the kind old farmer man. "You see, I have to stretch the boot to get you all tucked in."

"You'll be so snug, you can't fall out no matter how you whirl about. You'll be all set real shortly for the fine ride to begin."

Then Duncy snapped, "Quit pushing me. You almost have me smothered. Gee, I guess I'll stay down on the ground. I'll stay all right."

"Aw, fraidy cat," said Goldy. "You are always scared of things we do. Be brave this time and stick with us upon our myst'ry flight."

"Okay!" said Duncy. "I am game! If we get hurt, I'm not to blame." And then the farmer yelled. "Well, tots, I'll bid you all goodby."

"If you'll be careful what you do, this boot will take good care of you. Don't get fresh with the birds you meet away up in the sky."

The next thing that the whole bunch knew the boot arose. Away they flew! The farmer waved a fond goodby and disappeared from sight.

All was real quiet for a while and then we Goldy, with a smile, exclaimed, "Say, I was scared, at first, but now I am all right."

"On all sides there are clouds to see, and they're as pretty as can be. I guess we must be very high. I cannot see the ground."

Just then they heard a chirping, new and Copsy said, "Well, look who's here! Two funny birds have joined us and they're flying 'round and 'round.'"

ASHTON SEEKS STRONG HOLD SECOND PLACE

Blacks Are in First Division of the Standings

Beier's league-leading Loafers thunder down the Commercial league straight-away Monday night with the Ashton quint blocking the track.

Their first place role undangered by either victory or defeat to night, the Beiers will charge into the Ashton five confident and unimpressed by the calibre of their opposition. The villagers have been creeping up the ladder in the circuit unnoticed by the top division teams. Last week they dumped the I. N. U. into the scrap heap after toppling a surprised Knacks team into second place two weeks ago. The Knacks rest uncomfortably low in the ratings.

Staters Try Again
The first game of the evening pits the luckless Dixon State Hospital five against the I. N. U. outfit. The Staters have won only one game in eight starts. Last week they were idle and Thursday, in a non-loop encounter, they received a drubbing from Lee Center. The Hospital team has been hampered by illness and injuries in the ranks. At present Mansfield is out of action but he may be in shape Monday. Fitzpatrick, who has been laid up with an injured arm is back in the lineup. The I. N. U.'s non-conference fortunes were brightened by a pair of victories at Amboy's expense the past two weeks. They lost to Ashton in the league Tuesday.

Following are the standings:

Ashton	5	4

GREAT TRACK FIELD ATTACKS RECORDS AGAIN

Metcalfe's Chance Not So Good As It Was in 1934

New York, Feb. 23—(AP)—The never-ending assault of time and space will be carried forward tonight as 300 athletes from 20 states flash their speed and skill in the National A. A. U. indoor championships in Madison Square Garden.

The most impressive array of talent the indoor campaign has seen includes such standouts as Ralph Metcalfe, fleet Negro from Marquette; Glenn Cunningham, the world's most consistent miler, indoors or out; Jack Torrance, 300-pound weight man from Louisiana State; Chuck Hornbostel, Indiana's all-but-unbeatable running machine at distances from 600 to 1000 yards; Jesse Owens, Ohio State's Negro sprinter and broad-jumper extraordinary; Cornelius Johnson, lanky Negro high jumper from Los Angeles, and a host of others.

Some of the glamor has been rubbed off Cunningham's bid for his second successive 1500 meter crown because of the trouncing the Kansas hander Gene Venzke and Bill Bonthron in the Wanamaker mile of the New York A. C. games and his conquest of the same pair in the Millrose meet. But Venzke and Bonthron both will be in there trying again tonight.

Metcalfe Had Little Time
Metcalfe, busy studying law, has had little time for track this winter and may be short of his 60-meter sprint titles by any one of his three Negro rivals—Owens, Ben Johnson of Columbia or Eulace Peacock of Temple.

Hornbostel may go after 600-meter crown as well as the 1000 which he won a year ago. He is a standout at the longer route but won't meet tough competition from his fellow-Indian, Ivan Fuqua, as well as from Glenn (Slats) Hardin.

Dixon high school ended its home floor basketball season Friday night with the laurels of another N. C. I. conference victory resting on its head, and a lightweight basketball championship.
Coach L. E. Sharp's Purple and White quints subdued Belvidere the lightweights winning 20 to 13, and the heavies turning in a narrow 23-22 triumph. The only remaining game on the regular season's schedule is one with Mendota next Friday at that city. The district tournament follows on Dixon's court the week of March 6th to 9th. Victory for the lightweights last evening clinched for them the undisputed N. C. I. conference cage championship, the locals remaining in the unbeaten class.

The Dixon heavies wiped out an early Belvidere lead in the opening period and seemed able to keep it without difficulty until the closing moments of the game. The removal of "Red" Flanagan from the game after he had scored seven points in the first quarter, renewed hope for Belvidere. The guests immediately took advantage of his absence by whittling down Dixon's lead slowly but surely until in the closing minute they drew up to within two points behind the locals. Trailing 23-21, Newman was fouled and was given two free throw chances, which if completed, would have of Louisiana State, Milton Sandler of New York and Elton Brown of Pittsburgh (Kan.) Teachers College at 600 meters.

Torrance, who holds the world outdoor record for the shot put at 57 feet one inch will try to displace Leo Sexton's indoor standard of 52 feet 8 1/2 inches.

Just a word to the voters of the city of Dixon. As you know I am a candidate for the office of Mayor of your city.

I have been a resident and in business in Dixon for thirty-seven years, and I refer you to my past record as a business man and an official. I was assessor of Dixon township for five years. I made a fair and impartial assessment, and served the city as Alderman for six years, under the aldermanic form of government. Have been a city commissioner for the past two years. I have never failed to vote on any subject that came up for discussion in the council. I believe in the enforcement of the laws, and that the city's business should be run on the same economical business principles as an individual business.

If elected Mayor, I will endeavor to serve all the people to the best of my ability.

EQUIPOISE TO RECEIVE BIG TEST TODAY

Can Become the Best Money Winner in History

Los Angeles, Feb. 22—(AP)—Equipose, like a statue in fine bronze, stood against the western horizon today at the cross roads of a great turf career, only the Santa Anita Handicap mile and a quarter short of becoming the leading money winner of all time.

If the veteran son of Pennant can finish in front in the field of 21 as he is favored to do, his total earnings will skyrocket past the present milestone of $376,744 set up by Sun Beau.

It will be one of the most severe tests of a long and brilliant competitive term in which this star of the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney Stables has finished out of the money only seven times.

More than 50,000 persons were expected to jam Santa Anita park to the limit for a glimpse of one of the finest thoroughbred fields ever assembled. It was probable the sentiment would be so overwhelming.

Ekky Big Favorite
This in the face of such struts as Twenty Grand, Ladysman, Mate and Ekky, all old rivals of Equipose and a field of other blue bloods of the turf including Time Supply, Azucar, Gusto, Top Row, Fleam and Fairno. The horses were expected to go to the post probably around 6:30 P. M. C. S. T. (4:30 P. S. T.).

Out of the 21 listed in the overnight entries, Ladysman was most liked as the runner to beat Equipose and spoil his plans of blazing the money winning trail beyond his present earnings of $34,110.

William R. Coe's 5-year-old was liked for several reasons. Ladysman beat the Whitney charger in the Suburban Handicap a year ago. He has trained well here, perhaps better than has Equipose. His impost was 13 pounds less than Ekky's top weight of 130 and he is younger.

Twenty Grand Menaces
Twenty Grand, with sensational Silvio Coucci up, also held a fine chance, coming as he has out of almost three years retirement, had much backing including that of the track clockers.

Azucar, the revamped steeplechase expert and Gusto also were in for much consideration, not to mention rogulish Head Play, a handsome thoroughbred which expects feel can win if that is his mood.

EXIT BABE, ENTER LOU

Equipose was fortunate in the draw from post positions. Twentieth position will be his this afternoon, the spot from which he works best. From here Jockey Raymond (Sonny) Workman can keep him out of early trouble and perhaps bring him home from back in the rush to win. Ekky was not the only horse in that classy field with a chance of passing Sun Beau's mark. Mate, A. C. Bostwick's nominee, has collected $297,660 in cash and with first place money certain to be better than $100,000, could move into the coveted position by winning.

But Mate's training here has not been impressive, and it seemed on the face of the facts that his chance of topping such an impressive field were remote.

Still, anything could happen in such a large field, with the riding talent almost as impressive as the mounts. Besides Workman and Coucci, there was Maurice Peters, 1934 champion; Don Meade, Tom Luther, George Woolf, Jack Westroper, Charles Kurtsinger and Bobby Jones.

Has Good Jockey
But even at this, the Equipose-Workman combination, on the basis of past performances, was hard to beat. No other rider has been able to work Ekky as has Washington, D. C. pilot. He has booted the champion home in most

Londos Uses Body Slam To Vanish

Chicago, Feb. 22—(AP)—Jim Londos last night defeated Fred Grubmiller of Iowa, in the headline match of a wrestling show at the Auditorium. He won the fall in 22 minutes, 40 seconds with a body slam.

PURDUE MUST CONQUER OHIO STATE TO LEAD

Defeat Would Let Badgers Into a Tie For Leadership

Chicago, Feb. 23—(AP)—Purdue, the leader, tackles Ohio State, and Wisconsin, the logical candidate to overhaul the Boilermakers, if anyone does, meets Michigan in the feature offerings of a five-game Western conference basketball program tonight.

The Badgers, trailing Purdue by only half a game, appear certain of making it two straight over Michigan, leaving the Boilermakers with the absolute necessity of conquering Ohio State at Columbus. Purdue managed to defeat Ohio by one point in their first meeting at Lafayette, and doesn't figure to find the Buckeyes any easier on the Columbus floor. Purdue has seven victories and one setback, to seven and two for Wisconsin.

Hoosiers Meet N. U.
Indiana, tied with Illinois for third place at five victories, and three defeats, meets Northwestern at Bloomington and looks like a winner. The Illini, who have played alternately brilliant and indifferent basketball this season, will get a thorough workout, and perhaps a beating, from the big Gophers at Minneapolis.

Iowa and Chicago meet at Chicago in a contest of no championship significance, but one highly important to the combatants. The Hawkeyes hope to halt their slide toward the bottom of the list. The Maroons see a chance of racking up their first conference victory of the campaign.

The battle for individual scoring honors also will be resumed. Bill Haarlow, Chicago's ace will attempt to add to his 112 points at the expense of the Iowa defender, and his oncoming rival, Bob Kessler of Purdue, probably will be fed plenty of shots at Columbus. Kessler scored 23 points Monday as the Boilermaker trimmed Indiana, bettering Haarlow's previous mark of 22, accounted for against Minnesota early in the season.

Sunday school at 9:00. Didn't you like the interest in our Sunday school last Sunday? I did. The attendance was much better and interest in the world. How could anything be the same when for Gale there was only blankness and emptiness everywhere?

Once during that terrible, endless night Gale had pressed her hands together and buried her face in the pillow, sobbing in a muffled, smothered voice, "I can't go on! I can't!"

But she knew that she could. People did, somehow. People all over the world who were suffering and broken-hearted, for whom brief visions of happiness had suddenly shattered, managed to piece together their broken lives once more.

Gale thought, "It's better to know it now. I ought to be glad it happened this way."

She should have been, and yet she thought failed to comfort her. She had rehearsed the same arguments the night before. Lying wide-eyed, in the darkness, she had pictured again the scene with Vicky. She had gone over all that Brian had said Sunday—fragmentary sentences that had seemed so precious then. Why had he said them? Why had he said, "I love you, Gale. I think I've loved you since the first time I saw you."

Why? Because Steve had been right about Brian, and she had been wrong. Because she was a mill girl and Brian found it amusing to pretend he cared for her. Silly of her to suppose it had been more than that for one moment.

Brian hadn't said, "I love you, Gale, and want to marry you." Not to her. He'd said that to Vicky Thatcher who belonged to his own world, whom everyone should be well equipped to break Harmon's winning streak. Harmon defeated the Franklin Grove team at the beginning of the season, 20-10, on their own court and since then has accumulated a string of ten victories.

The Home Economics club meeting was held Wednesday afternoon. The topic was "Conversation in Public Places."

Wednesday morning the juniors had a fine time picking out their class ring. We suddenly realized how dignified and superior we should be, as we will be seniors next year.

Work on selections for contests was started this week. Many have gone in for different events in music and speaking.

The juniors were defeated two to sixteen by the seniors in the last game of the basketball tournament Friday. The junior players were: Mary Hall, Georgia Lahman, Lois Gatz, Nelda Fuller and Pauline Kelley. In the first quarter of the second half, Georgia Lahman was taken out because of injury. Mary Hall took her place and Georgia Peterman played center. In the last quarter Georgia Lahman resumed play. The senior players were: Marion Norris, Barbara Group, Ruth Delauder, Jeanette Meyers and Ione Butterbaugh. At the beginning of the second half, Ione Butterbaugh was replaced by Marjorie Weldon. Miss Schmidt was referee and Muriel Kness was time and scorekeeper.

The girls who play ping-pong have made plans to play a team of Ashton girls within the next few weeks.

The Agricultural students venture forth Saturday to Lena for a seed judging contest. We wish them luck.

Mother Dies. Rev. F. W. Henke, pastor of the St. Paul's Lutheran church at this place, received a telegram Tuesday from Spokane, Washington, informing him of the death of his mother, Mrs. John Henke, which occurred at noon Tuesday. Mrs. Henke was 65 years of age and had been living at the home of her two daughters in Spokane. She had been afflicted for the past 25 years with dropsy. She is survived by her husband and nine children. Rev. and Mrs. Henke departed on Wednesday night over the Burlington road from Rochelle for Spokane, where they arrived Friday. Funeral services will be held Saturday. Due to the absence of Rev. Henke, there will be no preaching service at the Lutheran church.

Circle No. 2 of the Methodist A4 society will meet next Thursday with Mrs. Harry Patterson. Every member is urged to be present as business of importance is to be transacted concerning the sample tea.

SILKEN SPINDLES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GALE HENDERSON, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 19-year-old brother, PHIL, support their invalid father.

STEVE MEYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days. Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris to enter the mill. Gale disappears before he can learn her name.

VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to capture Brian. Gale and Steve quarrel, later make up.

Vicky tells Brian she wants to get acquainted with the mill workers, on the pretense of helping them. He is pleased, agrees to take her to see Gale. Next evening they call.

Gale goes skating. Vicky tells her that she, Vicky, and Brian are engaged to be married.

Brian comes home after Vicky has gone, but Gale refuses to talk to him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII

THE amazing fact to Gale was that everything went on next day, just as it had. The sun shone brightly. Birds were singing as she walked to work—sharp, shrill notes that were a mockery. Two girls, standing beside Gale in the cloak room, laughed and joked as they hung away their coats and hats.

It was all just as it had been the day before.

Gale and yet, how could it be? How could there be laughter and gaiety in the world? How could anything be the same when for Gale there was only blankness and emptiness everywhere?

Once during that terrible, endless night Gale had pressed her hands together and buried her face in the pillow, sobbing in a muffled, smothered voice, "I can't go on! I can't!"

But she knew that she could. People did, somehow. People all over the world who were suffering and broken-hearted, for whom brief visions of happiness had suddenly shattered, managed to piece together their broken lives once more.

Gale thought, "It's better to know it now. I ought to be glad it happened this way."

She should have been, and yet she thought failed to comfort her. She had rehearsed the same arguments the night before. Lying wide-eyed, in the darkness, she had pictured again the scene with Vicky. She had gone over all that Brian had said Sunday—fragmentary sentences that had seemed so precious then. Why had he said them? Why had he said, "I love you, Gale. I think I've loved you since the first time I saw you."

Why? Because Steve had been right about Brian, and she had been wrong. Because she was a mill girl and Brian found it amusing to pretend he cared for her. Silly of her to suppose it had been more than that for one moment.

Brian hadn't said, "I love you, Gale, and want to marry you." Not to her. He'd said that to Vicky Thatcher who belonged to his own world, whom everyone expected him to marry.

Well, she had learned. She felt humbled, humiliated. And there was more to it than that. She had really cared for Brian Westmore—or for the man she had thought Brian Westmore to be.

COMING home that evening she heard a call from across the street and halted at the smallest of the O'Connors came flying toward her. He wore a coat several sizes too large, its sleeves dangling almost to the ground. His knitted cap was jammed over his forehead, but he threw his head far back, staring up at her with blue, appraising eyes.

The smallest O'Connor grasped at Gale's coat with bare, grimy hands and said impatiently, "Thay—when ith he comin' back?"

"When is who coming back?" "You know! The man who doeth thicks."

"Oh!" The chubby hand clutched Gale's heart again. It was a moment before she found her voice. Then she said, "I don't know, Tommy. I—I don't know when he's coming back."

"But I want to see him! Look—he thaid ith wath like thith—"

The grimy fingers dug into a half-ton pocket, producing a cork from a bottle.

"He thaid—" The youngster began attempting to demonstrate the puzzle, but Gale put a hand on his shoulder.

"I'm sorry, honey," she said, "but I've got to go in the house now. I've got to get supper. Some other time you can show me how the trick goes."

But the youngster was adamant. "No," he said, "I'll wait until he comes back here. I'll wait over and over and I can't get it right. You tell him—"

Gale sought escape. "Maybe Phil knows how to do it," she said. "He'll be coming any minute now."

The child shook his head. "I'll thaid that man I want to thee," he repeated.

From the rear of the O'Connors' house a shrill voice called, "Tom-mee! Oh, Tom-mee!"

"That's your Mother," Gale said. "You mustn't keep her waiting."

THE shrill cry was repeated. Tommy looked up at Gale sorrowfully. "All right," he said, "I'll go, but I'm comin' back! I want to see that man—"

Gale hurried up the walk and into the house.

It was Brian whom Tommy wanted to see—Brian with his tricks to amuse youngsters; his gay, flattering speeches that were tricks, too.

She opened the door and called a greeting to her father, then went into the kitchen and methodically began preparing the evening meal.

After they had finished eating, after the dishes had been washed and put away Josie Griddle came. Josie brought the brown dress Gale had promised to help make over. It was wrapped in a newspaper with a strip of plaid silk and a picture from a fashion magazine.

"Look," Josie said, holding the strip of plaid up to her face. "Don't you think it's kind of pretty?"

"Very pretty," Gale nodded. She had forgotten that she had promised to help Josie. She said, looking at the fashion picture, "Oh, yes—this is the one we decided on, isn't it?"

She got out newspapers and cut a collar pattern, fitting it about Josie's shoulders. She pinned the paper collar into place and Josie considered herself in the mirror and seemed pleased.

She said, "Gee, Gale, it must be swell to be able to sew like you can. I tried to make a dress once and you should have seen it! Was I a sight?"

Gale was cutting the silk, careful to keep the edges even. "It just takes practice," she said. "It isn't hard after you've had a little practice."

MAYBE that was the way with other things," she thought. Maybe after telling yourself often enough that you didn't care about a person, that you despised them, it would really be true. She hoped it was like that, hoped it with all her heart!

She drew her needle in and out of the silk, taking minute, invisible stitches. She had the binding on one-half of the collar when Josie cut in sharply:

"Gale, look—you've got it on the wrong side!"

"Oh, I have, haven't I? I'll have to rip it—"

Josie eyed the other girl shrewdly. She thought for an instant that there were tears in Gale's eyes, but that was ridiculous. Putting the binding of a collar on the wrong way couldn't make anyone cry.

An hour later, Josie rose to leave, the finished dress over her arm. She said, "Gee, Gale, you were swell to do this for me. It's like a new dress—"

"I'm glad I could do it," Gale smiled. "Oh, Tom-mee!"

"That's your Mother," Gale said. "You mustn't keep her waiting."

THE shrill cry was repeated. Tommy looked up at Gale sorrowfully. "All right," he said, "I'll go, but I'm comin' back! I want to see that man—"

Gale hurried up the walk and into the house.

It was Brian whom Tommy wanted to see—Brian with his tricks to amuse youngsters; his gay, flattering speeches that were tricks, too.

POOL IN ASSEMBLY PARK My Dear Mr. Editor—Would you be willing to publish a letter—the humble opinion of a citizen concerning the desirability and a location for a swimming pool for the city of Dixon?

Of all recreations swimming is the most healthful and attractive. Every child and adult should be able to swim. Emergencies arise when many a life could be saved providing one could swim and swim well. Swimming tends to develop healthy muscle and gives grace and symmetry to the body. It should be made possible that all who will might learn and enjoy it. A pool should be located where it is easily accessible to all. Nevertheless it should have a seclusion that would keep it from being a public gaze stock or a community nuisance; the setting also should be wholesome and if possible attractive. To fit the above desirable conditions I could think of no better place than Assembly Park.
